

Wednesday 19th June 2019

The beauty of the Meadow is complimented by the blooming dog roses in the hedge. They are only short-lived blossom but pretty, pink flowers which became rose hips.

Today we re-configured the Sedum Roof or the Bug Hotel. Meanwhile the Poppies are attracting loads of bees. Many field Poppies have appeared later than we had expected. Around the garden there are some interesting opium Poppies. We didn't plant them. Near the pond there is an area of Corn Cockles interspersed with Lichens.

It's wonderful to enjoy plants which 'more' themselves around the garden and surprise us. Come and have a look at the beautiful Meadow. The variety of colour is breath-taking.

We look forward to meeting you.

The volunteer gardeners at Hengistbury Head.